If there's anything you'd like to add, please share it with us here.

I think Florida should work more toward energy independence, FPL should pay net meter profits back to home owners as they happily increase our costs. Unfortunately the electric vehicle market is expanding at a rate greater than the infrastructure can and will be installed so the need for oil and gas will always be substantial. Plus the global market that depends on this business has so many branches off the tree to try to end the oil businesses would be devastating to the US economy. We have to think of all the ramifications involved in the answers as some have huge economic impact in the way of jobs and supply chain. Think through your answers don't just choose a party line stance.
